

Miss Angell Clare Boothe of Greenwich, Conn., photographed aboard the Olympic, on which she arrived recently with her mother. While on the Riviera this winter Miss Boothe was voted the most beautiful visitor. She is just 18.
Copyright, Keys:one View

Above—Remarkable air-plane view of Venice, one of the first taken since the war. Note the number of naval vessels at anchor in the roadstead.
From International.

Italian Air Service.

Bryn Mawr College girls in training for their outdoor meet. Picture shows the start of an interclass basketball game, an unusual action picture.
Underwood & Underwood.

Above—Capt. William A. Moffett, U. S. N., the new Director of Naval Aviation. He is working out plans for aerial attacks on the German prize ships.
Navy Official.

At left—Miss Elizabeth Cecil of Richmond, Va., a Bryn Mawr College girl, who excels at the high jump. She is in training for the June meet.
Underwood & Underwood.

Miss Marion Hollins of New York, noted sportswoman, photographed aboard the Aquitania just before sailing for England to compete in golf matches.
International.

Bryn Mawr College runners practising the start. Relay racing always is popular in the college meets, each class entering a team. Practically every one of the student body at Bryn Mawr is training for some outdoor sport this year.
Underwood & Underwood.